A Good Farm Year, While agriculture does not pay as it once did, some of the most successful people in Virginia are found among the farmers. In a good crop year like this the farmers in the Valey and Southwest Virginia cannot fail to make money. To make up for the falling off in agricultural profits in certain counties the farmers ship wood and bark, which generally command good prices. A great deal of money comes into Virginia for poplar wood, used in the manufacture of paper. And the best of it is this trade
